Iowa Media Firm Edits Hollywood Feature

Doug Krejci never thought he would be an editor on a Hollywood film in Iowa.

“You always hear those comments about how you need to be on the east or west coast in order to do big things in film and media . . . but thankfully, that’s not the case anymore.”

Krejci, owner of Accent Media Incorporated, feels fortunate to have been the editor recently for the international distribution of Ben Stein’s feature-length documentary movie, “Expelled: No Intelligence Allowed”.

“We were able to convince Hollywood that we had all of the right tools and the knowledge to edit the production in Iowa to their high standards and that of an admission-paying audience. In fact, we convinced them so much, they gave us enormous latitude.”

“Expelled” is a film that aims to persuade viewers that the theory of evolution was instrumental to the rise of the eugenics movement, Nazi Germany, and the Holocaust, and portrays advocates of intelligent design as victims of intellectual discrimination by the scientific community, which has rejected intelligent design as creationist pseudoscience.

Ben Stein, former Nixon speechwriter, movie star, and television personality, wrote and stars in the film.

Krejci said, “Usually we’re used to producing high-definition corporate videos and presentations, broadcast commercials, and web media, but this was a welcome change of pace that I really enjoyed the creativity with.”

As an editor, Krejci was responsible for making decisions on content, seamless look and feel, effects, transitions, and editing for time.

“We had a great time and the client was very happy with our work and creativity. My only disappointment was I never got to meet Mr. Stein to thank him.” said Krejci.
